

A FRIGHTFUL FIRE IN PHILADELPHIA

Five Firemen Are Dead, 21 Very Badly Injured, Four Missing.

Scene at Noon Was Indescribable--It Will Be Days Before the Great Oil Fire Can be Extinguished--Terrific Explosions Shook the City--List of the Dead And Injured.

Philadelphia, Aug. 20.—Five firemen are known to be killed, fifty people have been injured, and twenty-six are today missing. The latter are believed to be buried in the ruins of the great oil fire which is today sweeping the works of the Atlantic Refining company at Point Breeze in the southwestern part of this city.

Sixteen of the missing men are employees. Ten firemen were trapped by an explosion of the big tanks and were caught in the rivers of blazing oil. In their awful agony many of them jumped into the river from which they were rescued by the heroic efforts of their comrades.

Terrific explosions have shaken all that part of the city as one after another of the big tanks blew up.

Those known to be dead are:

Hoseman John M. Cullen.

Foreman James Ballis.

Ladderman Frank Davis.

Two employees of the refinery yet unidentified.

The other bodies are so badly charred and mangled that they are almost beyond recognition. The fire which started yesterday, spread rapidly, and in spite of the all-night battle of the firemen it is still raging fiercely. Six hundred and fifty thousand barrels of refined oil and benzine had been consumed by this morning, which means a loss of $1,300,000. Besides this, property worth $500,000 has been destroyed.

Philadelphia, Aug. 20.—At 11 o'clock this morning it is announced that it will be several days before the great oil fire can be extinguished. The latest estimates given are five dead, 21 seriously injured and four missing.

At noon the great Point Breeze fire was indescribable. Choked and blinded by smoke, heavily laden with benzine and naphtha fumes, the firemen plunged through the rivers of oil and water in search of supposed victims. The flames were burning furiously.

The injured so far as can be learned are: Foreman Diver, Chas. Leads, Frank Patterson, Samuel Mason, Chas. Neill, George Jennings, John Doyle, Alex. Finney, John Flynn, Richard Barrett, Jos. Ennault, Wm. McBride, Clem McConnell, Harry Wiesbrock, Wm. Eckst, Frank Maurizy, Alonzo Hersh, John McDonald, Jos. McNamee.

A SCORE DROWNED.

Half of Victims Women--Ohio River Steamer Overturned by a Squall--Pilot Abandoned His post to Save Wife and Child so Boat Became Unmanageable.

Paducah, Ky., Aug. 20.—It is today certain that between 18 and 20 people lost their lives as a result of the capsizing and sinking of the City of Golconda last night. No women were saved and few were drowned.

The steamer was struck by a cyclone. The pilot says the engineer abandoned his post when the wind struck, to save his wife and child so the boat became unmanageable and sank.

Paducah, Ky., Aug. 20.—While going into Crowell's landing at 7 o'clock Monday evening a sudden squall capsized the City of Golconda, which plies between here and Elizabethtown, Ill., and many lives were lost.

The disaster occurred as supper was served, and many of the 75 passengers were in the cabin. The wind struck the boat without warning and there was no time for those on the inside to escape.

Captain Jesse Bauer and Pilot E. E. Pack were the last to leave the boat and swam to shore. They saved several struggling in the water and left the survivors in a house near the bank and came to the city.

Captain Bauer, who arrived here two hours after the catastrophe, said: "The boat was getting ready to land when the squall struck her and she listed. Several passengers who were inside jumped overboard and were caught by the boat. The women, all of whom were in the cabin, could not be reached. The boat settled down in 10 feet of water over a reef, and two of the men who were in the cabin, H. E. Worten and N. S. Quartermaster of Hampton, broke through the glass and were saved. Three colored deckhands saved a woman and child. A yawl that had broken loose was caught by some of those struggling in the water and taken to the bank. We returned to the boat on this, but could find no signs of life and returned to shore."

and had been in the trade for several years, being owned by Captain Otto Bauer of Golconda, Ills.

The Mary N went to the scene of the wreck, returned at midnight with eight saved, and reported that 10 women drowned. The total number of those who perished may reach 17 or 20. None of the bodies were recovered, as the rescuers could not get into the cabin. The only woman saved was Mrs. Hayden, wife of engineer.

A partial list of the lost follows: Miss Lizzie Graham, Grahamville, Ky.; Miss Tricie Grimes, niece of Miss Graham, Grahamville, Ky.; Colonel Turner, Chaydon Gordon, William Webb, Smithland, Ky.; Watts Davis, Livingston county, Ky.; Mrs. Dave Adams, Miss Lucy Barnett, niece of Mrs. Adams, Smithland, Ky.; Clarence Slayden, Lola, Ky.; Mrs. W. A. Hogan, two sons and daughter, Paducah, Ky.; Will Woods, Golconda, Ills., deckhand; Horace Rondeau, Golconda, Ills., deckhand; Dee Jackson, Paducah, Ky., deckhand; George Stansberry, James McAllister of St. Louis, paralyzed partially in his legs, swam ashore.

Victims of Islander Wreck.
Victoria, B. C., Aug. 20.—Victorians are waiting patiently for an official list of those who lost their lives in the disaster which overtook the steamer Islander, for, although the list of dead has been reduced to 42, according to reports which reached Vancouver there are still a number of names which have not been received here. Some of the passengers are said to have acted most inhumanely, cutting the ropes as soon as they got into the boats and pushing off from the steamer.

Bark Probably Lost.
Pensacola, Fla., Aug. 20.—It is feared that the Russian bark Neptune, Captain Zetzkoff, which sailed from here Aug. 10 for Montevideo, was lost in the recent storm. Pieces of the stern of a vessel with the name "Neptune" were picked up on the outer beach of Santa Rosa island.

WRECKED HOUSE

Four Locomotives and Tore Six Men to Pieces.

Besides Seriously Injuring Four Other People--Giant Powder Explosion at Herkimer.

Utica, N. Y., Aug. 20.—An explosion of giant powder in the round-house at Herkimer last night completely wrecked the house and four locomotives. It tore six men literally to pieces. The dead are: John Deek, Lewis Jackson, Harry Stansel, Levi Gilbert, James Naglo and Joseph Keller. Four others were seriously injured.

TO BUFFALO

Henry M. Gartner at Midnight Starts to Walk.

Escorted to Northern Limits of Newark by Painters' Union.

Henry M. Gartner will leave at midnight for Buffalo. A great many others of Newark's citizens have gone there this summer and there will be many others who will go, but none have, and none will go in the same manner as will Mr. Gartner, who proposes to walk from this city to the Pan-American exposition.

Mr. Gartner proposes to be a genuine foot traveler, after the fashion once so popular and prevalent in Europe.

The painters, decorators and paper hangers union of this city, to which organization Mr. Gartner belongs, will escort him to the north limits of the city, after being entertained at Mr. Gartner's.

He will be shod in a pair of Uncle Sam shoes, furnished by Carl & Seymour, the south side shoe dealers.

The start will be made at midnight and the route mapped out is as follows, from Newark to Mt. Vernon, where the pedestrian will spend Wednesday with his friend, Peter Baker, then to Akron, Cleveland, Painesville, Ashtabula, Erie, Pa., Dunkirk, N. Y., and Buffalo.

Mayor Atherton this morning gave Mr. Gartner his "walking papers," consisting of a certificate that the bearer was an honest and respected citizen of Newark, and asking for him all favors that could be shown.

Mr. Gartner has had previous experience in walking on long trips in Germany, but this is his first trip in the United States. He does not expect to travel as a mendicant or a common tramp, but will pay as he goes, his reason for taking the trip being to see the country through which he travels.

About two days before he gets to Buffalo he will telegraph his wife, who will take a train and join him in the Exposition City.

Mr. Gartner expects the trip to take about thirteen days, and he does not know yet whether he will walk back or come in the conventional way.

Pittsburg, Aug. 20.—One hundred and fifty employees of the Pennsylvania Tube company, corner Brady street and Second avenue, all members of the day turn, reported for work this morning, not knowing that the night men had struck. When informed of the situation, the day men quietly left for their homes. This makes 1,350 men that have left the plant since 6 o'clock last night, and the big plant is closed. The men are members of the Federation of Labor and are striking in sympathy with the Amalgamated association.

NEGROES NOT GUILTY

But Missouri Mob Hanged Them Nevertheless--Mob Burned Houses and Tried to Drive Negroes Out of Town--Shot Two--Help is Asked.

Springfield, Mo., Aug. 20.—The mob at Pierce City which hanged Godley and Gene Carter, two negroes last night, knew that they were not guilty of assault on Miss Wilde as alleged but they hanged them on general principles. The mob got beyond all control later, seized guns from the armory, and started to drive all the negroes out of town. The mob burned down four negroes' houses and refused to let the fire department put out the flames and also fatally shot Pete and Bob Hampton, negroes, who tried to defend themselves and negro woman in their house. Officers have asked for help from Springfield and other places to cope with the mob.

MIRACULOUS RESCUE.

Two Men Buried Five Days in Cleveland Tunnel Taken Out Alive and Will Survive--Were Not Aware of the Water Works Crib Fire.

Cleveland, O., Aug. 20.—Adam Kent and John Eugene, the two men rescued after five days' imprisonment in the water works tunnel, are today hovering between life and death at the hospital. Both are seriously and it will be 24 hours before they can tell the full story of their activity. The rescuers, they now believe, they will recover. They are now only kept in small quantities.

Cleveland, Aug. 20.—Adam Kent and John Eugene, two of the dozen or more workmen who were trapped in the waterworks tunnel 200 feet below the surface of Lake Erie by the burning of the crib last Wednesday night, were rescued from their horrid position and are lying semi-conscious at Hyron street hospital, where, in careful nursing, physicians say, they will soon recover their former strength and probably be none the worse for their experience. Since nothing of the kind has happened to any of their comrades, they are something surprised their connection with the crib. They knew that beyond the air lock, behind which they had taken refuge, the air was too foul to breathe. But they supposed that the trouble was temporary. Each day they expected to have their comrades

Washington, Aug. 20.—The weather bureau report today says good rains in Illinois, Indiana and Ohio have improved the outlook for corn, especially in Indiana, but in other portions of the corn belt, the greater part of the early corn is ruined. The propitious outlook for corn in the middle Atlantic States and New England continues.

THE WRONG MAN WILL BE ON TRIAL.

The Naval Court of Inquiry Should Try Sampson and Not Schley.

Sampson's Fear of Obsolete Guns in Spanish Batteries Made Him Refuse to Co-operate With General Shaffer by Entering Santiago Bay and Fighting Admiral Cervera--Startling Disclosures.

Washington, Aug. 20.—More facts are daily coming to light regarding the record of Admiral Sampson in the Santiago naval campaign which tend more strongly than ever to support the assertion that in the coming Schley court of inquiry the wrong man is to appear for trial.

From the records of the navy department the following facts are set forth:

1. That the United States squadron under the command of Admiral Sampson was outside the harbor of Santiago for several weeks, during which time it made no effort to effect an entrance.

2. That General Shaffer in command of the land forces, repeatedly called on Admiral Sampson for assistance and that the latter refused to enter the harbor, as Farragut entered Mobile bay and as Dewey entered Manila bay, for the reason that the shore batteries were too formidable and the torpedoes in the channel might sink one of his ships.

3. That General Shaffer, despairing of assistance from Admiral Sampson, communicated repeatedly with the war department at Washington for the purpose of inducing the President to order a movement within Santiago bay by Admiral Sampson and that guarded instructions with this end in view were sent to the latter, but were wholly ignored.

4. That General Shaffer, at a time when his army was in great peril and when yellow fever had broken out, in one of his appeals to Admiral Sampson for assistance in capturing the Cervera squadron and the city, was moved in his indignation to ask this commander of the most powerful American fleet ever assembled why if his men could operate for days under a destructive fire the armored ships under Admiral Sampson's command could not do the same.

5. That Admiral Sampson in various letters to General Shaffer insisted that it was the duty of the army to capture the shore batteries so that his ships could enter the bay "in safety."

6. That if it had not been for the temporary order to Cervera from Madrid to attempt to escape the Spanish squadron might have been captured by the army without the assistance of the navy.

7. That Admiral Sampson's agency with the fast cruiser New York on the day of the sea fight was for the purpose of meeting General Shaffer, a position which was so precarious that without naval assistance he was unable to complete the withdrawal of his forces, and to warn Admiral Sampson as to when Admiral Sampson was to return to make the attack that he could not enter Santiago bay because of the shore batteries and the shore torpedoes.

8. That after the destruction of the Cervera's ship.

Spanish ships on their attempt to escape Admiral Sampson still refused to enter Santiago bay owing to the formidable nature of the land defenses.

9. That when the city had finally been taken by General Shaffer's heroic army and an opportunity was given to the ordnance officers of the United States army to inspect the shore batteries which had given Admiral Sampson so much concern, it was found that they constituted, in the language of the official report, "a veritable artillery museum," most of the guns being antiquated and only a few of them being of any power whatever.

10. That the torpedoes so greatly feared by Admiral Sampson, and in similar cases feared not at all by Admirals Farragut and Dewey, were removed from the channel by Admiral Sampson's men and that no report exists as to their character, but that there is every reason to believe they were inferior and practically harmless like the guns on shore.

11. That after a way had been cleared for this gallant officer of the navy by the army the squadron under Admiral Sampson's command entered Santiago bay and the admiral laid claim to the shipping therein as his lawful prize, although it had been captured by the land forces.

These and other facts are fully set forth in the official documents. The following is the most shameful record that exists anywhere with relation to any man even in high command on land or water in the service of the United States.

How, through the conspiracies of the political and social favorites who have maintained their odds in the navy department for many years, these facts have been suppressed or obscured in the outrageous calumnies that have been heaped upon Admiral Schley is well known to the American people.

Perhaps they will see in these disclosures the reason why to break down the man who was actually in command when Cervera made his desperate sortie, and whose ship, the Brooklyn, though lightly armored, was in the midst of the fight from its beginning at the entrance of Santiago harbor until sixty miles away, after a running fight for hours, the Colon was compelled to strike its colors and make for shore.

No American with the memory of Farragut and Dewey in mind can read these disclosures without thanking God that Schley and not Sampson was actually in command at Santiago when the fight actually took place, and wishing that he had been in command in the first instance and without wondering how it comes about that Schley and not Sampson is to be the next month on charges amounting to cowardice and failure to perform duty.

State Issues.

The Virginia Democrats in their State convention, with 1,600 delegates present, resolved to make their battle on State issues. The platform touches on trusts in the proper spirit; but that is a National as well as a State issue. It can be met by both Federal and State power. Mr. Montague, the candidate for governor, will be the youngest chief magistrate of the "Old Dominion" who ever occupied the executive mansion and will have served nearly a year of his term before he reaches his fortyeth year. State issues are coming to the front in this off-year in all the States.

Pension Commissioner Evans' latest report shows that the pension roll is still increasing, there being a net gain of 4,206 over the preceding year. Of this increase 3,849 are chargeable to the Spanish war. Two Revolutionary pensioners died during the year, and 2215 of the war of 1812. Since 1790 the Government has paid in pensions the sum of $2,763,350,033.

A Misdirected Ambition.

(Omaha News.)
Admiral Sampson is a victim of the lust of fame. He was ambitious and his ambition should have made him a great naval officer. Instead it has wrecked his constitution and embittered his life. Fame touched him, lightly with her hand and he was not content. He sought to wrest the laurels from another's brow and place them on his own. Generosity would have won him a place in the hearts of the American people; avarice has made him practically a man without a country.

A Wise Democratic Policy.

(Cleveland Plain Dealer.)
The purpose of the Democratic in the several States, as their conventions are held, seems to be the putting aside of matters on which the party could not agree in the last two national campaigns and which brought about its defeat. By confining attention in the state contests to those questions which are directly involved, ignoring those which are not properly in issue, an opportunity will be given for the reuniting of the party upon such issues as may naturally arise in the next national campaign.

Gallantry of the Kurds.

(Pittsburg Post.)
The Kurds are becoming kind-hearted, and there is yet hope that Turkey may become a reasonably pleasant land in which to live. Recent reports from Constantinople tell of a raid of 500 Kurds through twelve Armenian villages and that the only things allowed to live were the young girls.

Astounded the Editor.

Editor S. A. Brown of Bensenville, Ill., was once immensely surprised. "I have long suffered from dyspepsia," he writes, "my wife was greatly run down. She had no strength or vigor and suffered great distress from her stomach, but she tried Electric Bitters which helped her at once, and, after using four bottles, she is entirely well, can eat anything. It's a grand tonic, and its gentle laxative qualities are splendid for torpid liver. For indigestion, Loss of Appetite, Stomach and Liver troubles it's a positive, guaranteed cure. Only 50c at Hall's drug store."

Akron Boiler-makers Strike.
Akron, O., Aug. 20.—Over 300 employees of the Stirling Boiler company at Barberton walked out. The trouble arises from the fact that the company had employed one nonunion boiler-maker, who was put to work last week, and whose dismissal the men demanded after he refused to join the union. The company's officials refused the demand of the men and they did not return to work after the noon hour Monday. Nearly 600 men are employed at the works, but the strike compelled the entire factory to close.

Killed at a Crossing.
Chillicothe, O., Aug. 20.—Robert Rutter and Jefferson Rutter, farmers, were instantly killed at Vigo by a Baltimore and Ohio Southwestern train. The men were eating lunch in their wagon as they crossed the track and did not observe the moving train. The wagon was torn to pieces.

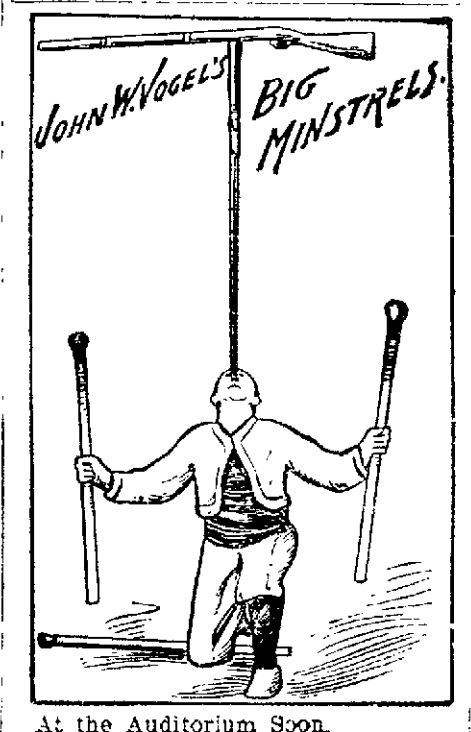

Fireman's Sudden Death.
Cleveland, Aug. 20.—Battalion Chief Sheldon A. Wright of the Cleveland fire department died of heart disease shortly after returning from a fire. It is thought that a narrow escape from suffocation at the fire was the cause of the fatal attack of heart trouble.

Freight Wreck Fatalities.
Sharon, O., Aug. 20.—In a freight wreck on the Pittsburgh and Western railroad near Moravia, Fireman Philip Powell of Canton, O., was killed, and brakeman W. S. McCurdy probably fatally hurt. Engineer Hillard of Bennett was seriously hurt.

Women as Conductors.
Indianapolis, Ind., Aug. 20.—Why the Madison Light and Railway company got rid of women conductors was explained to the state tax board in an appeal from the assessment presented by C. J. Roberts, attorney, and C. B. Johnson, superintendent. The women conductors soon showed a marked preference for particular male passengers, Roberts said, and talked to them almost exclusively. This aroused the jealousy of other men, who showed their feelings by refusing to ride on the cars. The result was, said Roberts, it was common to see a car with but one passenger, and that one talking to the conductor.

Girl Used a Rifle.
Richmond, Va., Aug. 20.—Miss Ola Neff, 18, daughter of a hotel proprietor at Rural Retreat, shot J. J. Waxelbaum, a Macon, Ga., produce buyer, in the left breast with a 22-caliber rifle ball, because, as she alleges, he accosted her on the street. She went home, procured the rifle, returned and shot the man without a word. The wound is not doing well. Miss Neff was held for grand jury action.

for mastery at the Dupuyes mills of the Carnegie company. Both sides are working secretly, the Amalgamated Association to extend its organization and strength among the workers and the steel company to block any plan to get the men out. Neither side has shown its strength yet, and it is impossible to get any line on the ultimate results. The claims made privately on either side are conflicting. The Amalgamated organizers assert that they have secured a strong position in the property and that when the word is given it will be shut down. The managers of the mills admit that the strikers have some friends in these mills, but express absolute confidence in their ability to keep the entire plant in operation. Coal and iron police carefully guard the property, admitting none except employees, and they in turn are watched by secret pickets of the strikers.

Three of the 12 open hearth furnaces at Dupuyes were shut down Monday night owing to the discharge of 15 molters last week. It is reported 10 more were discharged Monday. Assistant Secretary M. F. Tighe returned from the west and was closeted several hours with President Shaffer. He was given a very enthusiastic reception by his association and returns a stronger figure in the organization than when he departed. Discussing his report Mr. Shaffer said: "All that Mr. Tighe told me was in the papers last week, and there was nothing aside from this. The Chicago mill men who remained at work are no longer members of the organization. They are not entitled to a trial, and will have none. They are at liberty to act as they see fit now, but if they go out they will do so on their own responsibility. We will do nothing about the matter from this time. On the whole the strike is going on very well. We are getting out more men every day and will continue to do so. The fight is hardly begun yet. There will be plenty of trouble for the present before long if it keeps on in its present course. There has been no effort on any one's part toward peace, and there will be none on our part again. As to the situation in Duquesne, all I can say is that there has been no strike ordered in that mill as yet. I said last week that when we were ready that mill would be attended to."

Recruits For Strikers.
The men of the Pennsylvania works of the Pennsylvania Tube company in this city joined the strikers, and it is expected that the force in the Frankstown plant will follow them. About 60 men left the Pennsylvania works and it is almost certain that all of the remaining 600 will join in the movement and completely tie up the property. There are about 600 men in the Frankstown property and the total number of men added to the army of strikers by the movement will be about 1,800. When the strikers fled out of the Pennsylvania works they made the explanation that they had rather quit work than work with nonunion steel. It was understood the National Tube company had announced an advance in wages and it was thought that it would hold the men. There was an incident strike at the Keystone rolling mills, which is an independent property. The men objected to furnishing material to the United States Steel corporation, but the Amalgamated Association ordered them to resume work. This action is taken as meaning that all contracts made by independent mills before the strike began will be respected.

The Steel Trust Also Made a Series of Gains Monday in the restoration of properties crippled by the strike of the Amalgamated Association and its sympathizers. The steel mills at Monessen, after a long period of inactivity, were partly put in motion by strike breakers gathered in some of the southern states, two more mills in the Painter plant were also started up, and another mill at the Clark property, which also operated for the first time. There has been some disorder in the streets of Monessen during the day, but the local police never lost control of the demonstrative crowds and there was no serious trouble. The reopening of the Monessen mill is believed to be the first of a series of aggressive moves on the part of the steel corporation. Preparations are known to be in progress for reopening the Star tin mills in this city and for increasing the force at the Lindsay & McCutcheon mills, and it is thought to be only a matter of time before the strongholds of the strikers, like New-castle, McKeesport, Wheeling, Belaire and Mingo Junction, will be invaded.

Strikers deny that any real progress has been made at either Monessen or Painter's and say they are not to be frightened at the burning of a lot of coal, and the mere operation of machinery. They say that skilled men can not be secured outside of their ranks and that none of their men are deserting, despite claims to the contrary.

Managers of the Painter mills, which now have four mills on, claim that part of their two new cranes is to dealers in gasoline.

made up of old employees who have come back to work. At the Clark mill it is asserted that more skilled men are offered their services than can be accommodated. Fifty more were taken on the Monday, bringing the total force up to 600. It was claimed that there were 200 men at work in the Painter mill, 20 of them skilled men.

South Chicago Men Wavering.
Chicago, Aug. 20.—A decided sensation was created among the steel workers in the Illinois steel mills at South Chicago when 12 of the Amalgamated men quit work and decided to join the general strike of the steel workers. Those men here have refused to obey President Shaffer's call to strike. As soon as Vice President Davis of the Fourth District was informed of the step these men had taken he wired President Shaffer that if he would come to Chicago at once and call a joint meeting of the two leaders the remainder of the 500 Amalgamated men employed in the Chicago mills could be induced to join the strike.

Will Aid the Strikers.
Camden, N. J., Aug. 20.—The Federation of Trades and Labor Unions of New Jersey adopted a resolution pledging moral and financial support to the Amalgamated Association of Steel and Iron Workers.

DYNAMITE EXPLODED.

Six Men Were Killed While Battling With Flames.
Little Falls, N. Y., Aug. 20.—The Mohawk and Malone roundhouse at Herkimer was discovered to be on fire at 10:30 Monday night. Watchman Gilbert and an engine tender named John Deck, assisted by residents of the vicinity and members of the bridge-building gang, attempted to extinguish the flames. While they were battling with the fire a large quantity of dynamite stored in the building exploded with terrific force, killing Gilbert and Deck and four others. The bodies of the last mentioned are unrecognizable.

PALMA'S PLEDGE.

Cubans Want Him to Make It More Definite and Certain.
Havana, Aug. 20.—A meeting was held, attended by a number of revolutionary generals and politicians representing all parties, to ascertain the practicability of agreeing upon Senator Estrada Palma as a candidate for the presidency of the republic. It was convened at the request of General Gomez. General Sanginily and Juan Gualberto Gomez contended that before they could give their support to any candidate they must know his political program. The former pointed out that Senator Palma's recent letter to Senator Figueroa was very brief, and that he ought to be invited to set forth his intentions more clearly. Ultimately it was decided to appoint a committee empowered to address a communication to Senator Palma asking him to state more fully his intentions and purposes if elected president. General Gomez was appointed chairman of the committee.

Silva Satisfied.
Washington, Aug. 20.—When seen after his visit to the state department Dr. Silva, the Colombian minister, expressed himself as highly satisfied with the assurances given him by Mr. Hay that the United States would not take a hand in affairs on the isthmus unless a request came from the Colombian government itself or else the need of intervention became so apparent as to make a requisition unnecessary. The minister stated that some time ago he informed his government that the United States would not put in operation the treaty provision for keeping open traffic on the isthmus unless Colombia found herself unable to do so. He says his interview with Mr. Hay strengthened this view of affairs.

More Silks Seized.
New York, Aug. 20.—A new invoice of 15 cases of silk imported from Japan was reported to George R. Bidwell, collector of the port, by Appraisers Wakeman, for seizure. The government has taken charge of 40 cases of silk, weighing over 10,000 pounds and valued at more than $64,000. The duty on the silks which have already been seized will amount to more than $30,000, while under the methods carried on in the divisions before the frauds were discovered the importers would probably have paid only $9,000 on the lot.

King Oscar to Visit France.
Paris, Aug. 20.—King Oscar of Norway and Sweden has accepted President Loubet's invitation to witness the close of the grand maneuvers of the French squadron at Reims. He will enter France at Dunkirk, having previously visited with President Loubet the review of the northern squadron, which will welcome him to French waters.

Prominent Populist.
Kokomo, Ind., Aug. 20.—Julius B. Kokenom, 50, a well-known politician and former chairman of the Indiana State Populist committee, died suddenly at his home at Center of heart trouble.

PLANCHETTE.

It was after dinner, and they were sitting over the coffee discussing spiritualism, Mrs. Melville being an earnest believer in the second sight displayed, as she averred, by the planchette. She had been repeating its wonders to them in her most convincing manner.

"Well, I think it's all rot," drawled George Legie.
"It's not," said Mrs. Melville quickly, "is it, Jim?"
Her husband, a large, good tempered but unimpeachably placid man, looked up from his paper.

"I don't know, my dear," he said, cautiously. "I dare say there's something in it, you know." And he resumed his paper. They all laughed except Mrs. Melville, who said pettishly: "Jim, you are too absurdly cautious for anything. But you believe in it, Billy, don't you?" she continued, turning to the man sitting near her.

"My dear lady, they say seeing is believing. I have never seen—ergo, I cannot believe."

Mrs. Melville stretched out her hand to the bell. "Mary," as the maid opened the door, "bring a tray and a glass, please."

"Here's the tray," interrupted Billy. "Where will you have it, Mrs. Melville? Here?" as she put it on a small table. "Yes, that will do; upside down, please. Thanks. And the glass?" "George has it," said Billy.

"I was just making sure it was empty, Mrs. Melville," replied George in answer to her look.

"Very well. Let's begin. Who will try with me? Will you, Billy?" "I should be charmed," he answered, "if you will show me the way."

"Oh, it's easy enough," said Mrs. Melville. "You see—why, we haven't got the letters?"

"The post isn't in yet," remarked George.

"Really," said Mrs. Melville, "your witlessness are most terribly wearying, George."

"Yes," assented Billy. "You might give us a rest. Can I help you?" he said to Mrs. Melville, who was rummaging in her desk for the letters.

"No, thanks; I've got them. Now, you see, we put them round the tables—so." And in a most impressive silence she solemnly placed the letters round the edge of the table. "There!"

"Now that's done," she said at last. "Billy," she went on, "sit down there and put your fingers on the glass as I do." And she sat down opposite him.

"Well?" inquired George.
"Will some one please ask a question?" said Mrs. Melville in a solemn voice.

Nobody volunteered any remark.
"Jim," she continued, raising her voice.
"Ask the glass a question."

"Oh, all right." He put down his paper and sauntered over to the table. "What sort of question?" he said.

"Oh, anything! Only be quick."

"Well—er—which horse will win the Eclipse stakes? That do?"
"Well," said George, "if the glass can tell us that, it's cleverer than most people."

Be it resolved by the City Council of the City of Newark, Ohio, two-thirds of the whole number of members elected thereto concurring therein,

That it is deemed necessary by said city and this Council hereby declare that it is necessary to improve North Fourth street in said city from Charles street South to Log Pond Run, thence East on an alley along said Log Pond Run to Elm street, by excavating, grading, and constructing a sewer, with necessary catch-basins, house connections, manholes, etc., to said street and alley, between said points in accordance with the plans, profiles, estimates and specifications relating to said improvement now on file at the office of the City Clerk.

That the cost and expense of said improvement, less the cost and expense of improving street, alley or highway intersections, and less one-fifth of the entire cost and expense thereof, shall be assessed upon the lot and lands abutting thereon in the manner provided by law, and the ordinance for said improvement; said assessments shall be payable in ten semi-annual installments, and bonds shall be issued in anticipation of the collection thereof.

That the City Clerk is hereby directed to cause this resolution to be published for two consecutive weeks in a newspaper published out of general circulation in the corporation, and to serve written notice of the passage of this resolution upon the owners of lots and lands abutting upon said improvement, or to the person or persons in whose name they may be assessed upon the tax duplicate for taxation, who are residents of Licking county, Ohio, as required by law.

All persons claiming damages from the foregoing improvement must file their claims therefor at the office of the City Clerk within a four weeks from the first publication of this resolution, or within twenty days after service of written notice of the passage of this resolution.

Passed August 5, 1905.
P. T. MACRATH, City Clerk.
H. W. ROSSER, President.

Notice.

Scaled proposals will be received by the Board of Education of Newark, Ohio, at the office of the Clerk of said board, until 12 o'clock M., August 26th, 1905, for furnishing the necessary coal to heat the school buildings of said city, for the ensuing year. Each bid must be on the price per bushel of coal, both for lump coal, and the run of the mine, and must be accompanied by a sufficient guaranty of some disinterested person, that if the bid is accepted, a contract will be entered into and the performance of it properly secured.

The Board reserves the right to reject any or all bids.
By order of the Board,
D. M. KELLER, Clerk.

REJECTED

All Coal Bids Did the School Board

Will Readvertise—Certain Text Books Adopted—Others to Be Acted on Later.

The Board of Education met Monday evening with the following named members in attendance: Messrs. Christian, Beatty, Fulton, Hoover, Stavel, Haight, Henderson and Keller. Ellis to the amount of $117.30 were allowed.

The Clerk of the Board made his financial report for July, which showed that receipts from all sources amounted to $7,042.22, while the expenditures amounted to $5,100.77, leaving a balance in the treasury of $1,941.45 on Aug. 1.

Bids for supplying the various schools with coal during the ensuing year were as follows:

C. E. Moore—Lump coal, per ton, $2.15; run of mine, $1.95; on Shawnee coal, Rossville, lump, $2.05; run of mine, $1.85.

O. P. Connor—Bristol, lump, $1.98; run of mine, $1.78.

Bonner Bros.—Bristol lump, $2.09; run of mine, $1.84; Rossville, lump, $2.04.

E. J. Maerath—Co-hocon, lump, $2.25; run of mine, $1.95; Mocking lump, $2.15; run of mine, $2.00.

The member in charge of the Mill street building was authorized to purchase the necessary window shades.

The text book committee made its report, in which they recommended the adoption of the following books: Readers—First four books of Stepping Stones Literature.

McCleary's Cicero, now in use.

Harper's Virgil.

Morse's Speller, in place of Reed's Word Lessons.

Meyers' General History, now in use.

Wentworth's Revised Algebra.

Berger's Botany, now in use.

Montgomery's English History, now in use.

Mason's German Grammar, now in use.

Harkness' Latin Grammar, now in use.

A motion to adopt the report of the committee as a whole, was lost, as was also a motion to postpone action on the same until next Monday evening.

On a call of the roll the first four books of "Stepping Stones to Literature," published by Silver, Burdett & G. were adopted. The first book of "Mother Tongue" was adopted. The Board failed to agree on adoption of Grammar, Mother Tongue No. 2, by Ginn & Co., and Buchler's Grammar by Newson & Co., each receiving four votes, when it was resolved that the adoption of Grammar be postponed until the next meeting of the Board.

The adoption of the balance of the text books was postponed until the next meeting.

Pennsylvania Republicans.

Harrisburg, Pa., Aug. 20.—Indications are that the attendance at the Republican state convention Wednesday will be unusually small. There are no contests and the state committee will probably dispense with the customary meeting the day before the convention to make up the roll of delegates and select officers. There is apparently no opposition to the candidacy of Judge William Potter of Pittsburgh to succeed himself on the supreme court bench and Representative Frank G. Harris of Clearfield for state treasurer. These are the only nominations to be made, and the probabilities are that both will be made by acclamation, and that the convention will be shortest in the party's history.

Conferred With Croker.

London, Aug. 20.—Richard Croker, John Fox of the New York Democratic club and Andrew Friedman, all of whom are now in London, were in conference regarding the political situation in New York City. Mr. Friedman will accompany Mr. Croker across the Atlantic. Mr. Croker denied himself to all callers, except a few intimates, his excuse being that he was busy arranging for his departure, so as to arrive in New York Sept. 5.

OFFERED A BRIBE

Was One of Newark's Councilmen Declared Mr. Fromholtz
---Nine Hours a Day's Work---Bond Bids---House Numbers---Important Session of Council.

The City Council met Monday evening in regular session with the following named members present: Boardman, Evans, Fromholtz, Jones, Lamb, Linn, Matthews, Miller, Phillips, Shaw, Steffe, Speers, President Rossel presiding.

The minutes of the preceding meeting were read and approved.

The bids that had been opened for the $25,000 refunding bonds, were read by the clerk and they were received and spread upon the journal.

The bids for the Haiple house and lot were read by the clerk. The bid of $200 for the lot by W. F. Seymour was moved to be rejected by Mr. Jones, but the motion was lost by a vote of 8 yeas to 6 nays, 1 not voting.

The other bids were received and filed.

The specifications of the Seagrave Fire Department Supply Company, of Columbus, were read by the clerk, for the furnishing of a combination hose wagon and chemical engine and two 35-gallon tanks, at a price of $1650.

The bid of the Fire Extinguisher Manufacturing Company of Chicago, for the same apparatus, for $1675, was also read.

Some controversy came up at this point as to whether or not the latter bid was made in accordance with the specifications, and C. C. Hale, representing that company in an impassioned speech to the council, asked that the other bids submitted by his company be read, as his company had a bid lower than the Seagrave Company, according to the city's specifications.

H. E. Crouse, representing the Seagrave people, secured permission to address the council, and stated that his company had given an honest bid, according to specifications, and it was unfair after the matter had been made public, to require them to return and bid again.

Solicitor Smythe stated that the council in spending the city's money were compelled to accept the lowest bid made in accordance with the advertised specifications.

The city clerk then read a bid for $1,475 from the Fire Extinguisher Manufacturing company, but Mr. Fromholtz said the bid had not been received in time.

Mr. Hale then took the floor and said that under the law he had a right to submit a bid up until the meeting of the council.

"Your bid was not in accordance with the specifications, and it was rejected," said Mr. Fromholtz, "and this last bid read shows there is something crooked somewhere."

"Oh, no, Mr. Fromholtz, you're mistaken," said Hale.

"I am not mistaken," shouted Fromholtz, now white with rage, "and I further say that you are crooked, you offered a member of this committee a bribe, and I defy you to deny it."

Hale subsided and said no more, and thus this incident was closed.

The entire matter was then referred back to the fire committee for further consideration.

The fire committee reported recommending that the chief of the fire department be sent to Indianapolis to attend the convention of Fire Chiefs.

That the team selected by the committee for the West End department be purchased.

The building and fire committee reported recommending that C. E. Moore's plans and specifications for the North Fourth street fire department be accepted, and that W. L. Palmer's bid on the Haiple lot be accepted; adopted.

The labor committee recommended that the ordinance making nine hours a day's work, at $1.50 per day for a man, and $2.50 for a man and team be passed, received and filed.

Fortnight merchants of the South Side petitioned the council that Wm. Jones be employed as sewer there, referred to street committee.

A petition from residents on Anderson street asking for a sewer to connect with Cedar street sewer, was received and filed.

An ordinance was read for the first time, making it unlawful to bury dead animals in the city buying grounds without a permit from the city, received and passed under a suspension of the rules.

An ordinance was read for the first time, making it discretionary with the Mayor, to sentence any offender against any ordinances of the City of Newark, to the work house at Columbus, at a rate of 25 cents per day for from 30 to 100 days, said ordinance to be paid by the City of Newark. A motion to suspend the rules and pass the ordinance was lost 8 to 4. The ordinance.

An ordinance was read for the first time making it compulsory that one making an excavation, or having piles of lumber or other building material in front of his property, provide the public by placing safety barriers and red lights there, was passed under a suspension of the rules.

The street committee reported, suggesting that the street commissioners clean the gutters in the city at a cost of $1,200; adopted.

A. H. Donaldson, J. W. Sasser and Charles A. McNeal submitted a proposition to furnish aluminum numbers for houses at 15 cents per number. Harry Delano also submitted a proposition to furnish an aluminum number at the same price, but a different style, which latter proposition was adopted by the street committee, and Delano was given the contract.

C. E. Moore recommended that Levi Ferguson & Son be allowed an estimate of $1,000 on the West End fire department building; received and filed.

Civil Engineer Roemer reported that about $120 worth of instruments were needed in his office. The matter was referred to the street committee with power to act.

EXHAUSTIVE

Study of Women Workers of Ohio.

Mrs. Hopley Has Already Begun the Work Which Will Require About Three Months.

A telegram to the Advocate yesterday afternoon announced the appointment by Commissioner Ratchford of Mrs. J. R. Hopley, formerly Miss Elizabeth Sheppard of Granville, to investigate the employment of women in Ohio. The Commissioner says:

Many of the states have successful factory inspectors who are women, for women perhaps, have greater penetration, or at least broader sympathies than men, and therefore can better reach the inmost thought of the women and those who labor in factories and whose lives are anything but rose-colored.

Ohio has no regular women factory inspector, but Mr. Ratchford, the commissioner of labor statistics, has thought it wise to appoint a special agent for the purpose of looking into the conditions of women and children who are employed in factories throughout the state, and has selected Mrs. James R. Hopley as being the woman above all others whom he thought would be the most successful in the work.

Mrs. Hopley was long in being persuaded to undertake the task but the fact of her being the president of the Ohio Federation of Women's clubs, an organization which believes in the uplifting of women and children, convinced her that this was the work that would bring the women's clubs into closer relationship with the toilers of their own sex.

Mrs. Hopley is to visit the five largest cities of the state and left Monday afternoon for Cincinnati, where she will remain at least two weeks. She will not only study the conditions under which women and children work in the factories, but will visit their homes and find out as much as possible of their lives and environment. She will also look into the care that is taken of clerks in the stores, whether or not they have stools upon which to sit (as is provided for by law), and will study the sweat shop system whenever she can.

The work laid out for her will take about three months. At the end of which she is to make a report to the commissioner.

Mrs. Hopley will have many interesting things to tell the Ohio Federation at its convention in October, as to the condition of things in the field of feminine labor.

Rhodes, a Famous Skipper. During the Atlantic's cup races on Sandy Hook next month the work of the best known yachting experts in America will attract much attention. With them, in fact, lies the fulfillment of a disappointment of the hopes of victory entertained by the folk of two nations.

Captain Uriah Rhodes of the Herreshoff built sloop Constitution is one of the best known yachting experts in America, and there is no doubt in the hearts of his countrymen that he will guide the graceful craft to a decisive victory over the Shamrock II. Captain Rhodes is a native of Long Island, N. Y., and obtained his primary lessons in seamanship on board an oyster dredger. Captain Rhodes sailed the Defender when she was a trial boat for the Columbia. He was before the mast on the sloop Atlantic when she tried for cup honors against the Puritan and Mayflower. He served as mate on the Volunteer and since then has served on many different vessels.

It was in 1895, when he took command of the Defender, that Captain Rhodes became widely known, and when W. Butler Duncan announced that he was to hold the wheel of the Constitution general satisfaction was expressed. He is a man of fine physical proportions and is noted for his conservatism.

New York's New Race Track.

The plan of New York State Senator Timothy D. Sullivan and his associates among Tammany Hall politicians to construct a new race course near New York city has taken definite shape, and negotiations for the purchase of real estate a mile and a half from Jamaica, on the line of the southern branch of the Long Island railroad, have been opened and terms agreed on.

The property comprises about 110 acres at a point where a new station, to be known as Locust, is to be established, the railroad officials having promised their aid in the carrying out of the scheme. There also will be trolley line conveniences. The land will require no grading, as it now is level, as is most of the surrounding country. There is also plenty of water easily accessible.

It is said that the actual work of laying out and constructing the race track will begin in 30 days, and plans agreed upon provide for completion by March 1, 1902. An oval mile and a "shoot" furnishing a straight course of five and a half furlongs will be built. At all points the "shoot" and the main track will be 110 feet wide.

The grand stand will be 500 feet in length. Whether it will be a wood or steel structure has not been decided. A commodious clubhouse will also be erected. The betting ring will be twice as large as the largest enclosure for bookmakers and their customers provided by any club now racing on Long Island.

Articles of incorporation will be filed within a month for the new racing association, which is to be known as the Metropolitan Jockey club. Those interested in the new association assert that the stock has all been subscribed for.

The "Kangaroo" Start.

Of the hundreds of thousands of persons who witness college or other athletic sports probably not one in a hundred thousand persons knows how the peculiar crouching or "kangaroo" start of the sprinters originated.

Eleven years ago every sprinter stood up to the mark with an arm extended. At the crack of the pistol he brought his arm down hard and leaped forward. This start was considered the proper thing. Now not one sprinter in a score uses this method. Instead they crouch with hands as well as feet upon the ground. This start was discovered by accident in May, 1890, by Tommy Lee, at that time one of the crack sprinters of the New York Athletic club. Soon afterward he became the champion of the world, and several of his records made in Canada still stand as records of that country.

The Olympian Games.

It is said that over half of the $500,000 necessary to secure the Olympian games for Chicago in 1904 has already been pledged. In case the rest cannot be secured the University of Chicago has offered its campus as a site for the stadium, thus effecting a considerable saving. Nevertheless the Windy City is undertaking a big contract, for under the terms of the award the city is pledged to pay the expenses of the visiting athletes.

International Poloists.

Foxhall P. Keene, who has in charge the selection of a team to play for the Hurlingham cups at Hurlingham, England, in the annual English championships, has made his choice as follows: Foxhall P. Keene, captain, Lakewood (N. J.) Polo club; John Elliott Cowdin, Lakewood Polo club; M. Waterbury, Jr., Country club of Westchester, N. Y., and Lawrence Waterbury, back, Country club of Westchester, N. Y.

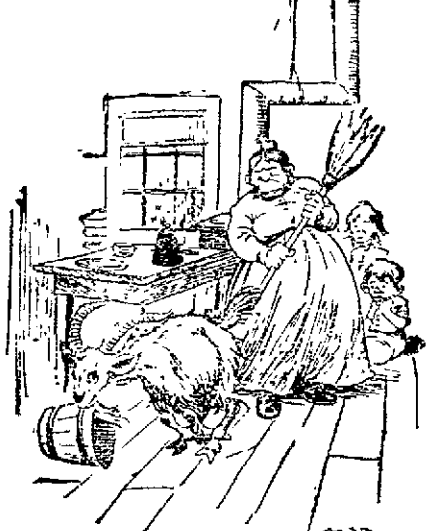

McMURPHY'S FLATS.

THE GERMAN GROCER GETS FURTHER NEWS OF THE TENANTS.

The Janitor of the Building Tells Him About Lady O'Sullivan's Poker Party and What Happened When the Betting Got High.

[Continued from page 1.] "Well, Mr. Sprocket, I don't know but you may be right," said the German grocer as the janitor of McMurry's flats limped into the store the other day.

"No; I still live," was the reply, "but I'm not giving the tenants to understand that I'm in robust health. This limp is supposed to be for rheumatism in the legs, and on top of that I have my regular washing and house cleaning."

"SHE RUN THE GOAT OUT OF THE HOUSE." When a janitor has got his tenants so that they are afraid to ask him to sweep the halls for fear he will fall dead, he's got a pretty good thing.

"Und dese families—do dey quarrel some more, or vvas all peace und happiness?"

"It's sad times over at the flats, Mr. Wasserman, sad times, and there are hours at a time when my heart aches over the wickedness of human nature. The last time I talked with you each of the three women was trying to do the other in style, but the barber's wife had carried off the palm. There was a week in which Mrs. O'Sullivan of the first floor and the Countess Divito of the second were crushed to earth. Mrs. O'Sullivan was the first to rally. One morning she twisted up her hair in a knot, spanked three or four of the children and ran the goat out of the house, and, going up stairs to the colored woman, she knocked on her door and said: 'Lady Torrington, a lady as is a lady knows another lady as is a lady as soon as she sets her eyes on her.'

"You bet yer she do!" said Mrs. Torrington.

"Then I am a lady, you are a lady, and the countess is a lady, and phwat's the use of any hard feelings? I'm going to give a little recherche affair this evening, and I've come up to extend a high down invitation."

"Vvas it a party?" asked the grocer as he absently toyed with a string bean.

"Yes, of course. The word 'recherche' knocks you out, but as a janitor I make use of it a hundred times a day. It means the same as four XXXX's on a can of sardines—something very exclusive, you know. The barber's wife knew all about it, and she wasn't over a minute accepting the invitation. She'd got tired of quarreling and was ready to make up. Then Mrs. O'Sullivan extended the invitation to the countess. I stood by as she did it, and I tell you, Mr. Wasserman, it made me proud of the McMurry flats. She knocked on the door, and as it was opened she made a grand courtesy and said:

"The Lady O'Sullivan's compliments to the Countess of Divito, and will the Countess of Divito condescend to honor the Lady O'Sullivan with her royal presence this evening at the hour of 8?"

"The countess had probably expected to be hit with a washboard," continued the janitor, "and she was too surprised for the moment to speak, but when she got at it she responded according to court etiquette. I knew Mrs. O'Sullivan had some little game on hand, but just what it was I couldn't figure out. However, when she asked me what sort of refreshments went with a recherche affair I recommended bottled beer, sliced onions and sardines and bided my time to unravel the mystery."

"Und dot party comes off?" queried the grocer.

"It does. Yes, at 8 o'clock this evening Lady Torrington and the Countess Divito descended to the first floor and were received with all due honors by Lady O'Sullivan. You know what a prelude is, don't you?"

"Yes, I vvas sometings dot takes place afterwards."

"You are wrong, Mr. Wasserman. It is something that takes place before anything else happens. In this case the prelude was a glass of beer all around and a song by Lady O'Sullivan, and then the honored guests were invited to sit down to a little game of poker. As soon as I heard of it the mystery was explained. Tim O'Sullivan had been coaching his wife at poker for a week."

"By golly, and some gambling goes on!" exclaimed the grocer in considerable excitement.

"Some gambling goes on," sighed the janitor. "If the guests were surprised, they didn't show it, but sat down and were soon at it, and for half an hour all went well. Then Lady O'Sullivan gets threes."

"Three pokers?"

"No; three kings. Yes, she gets three kings, but Lady Torrington gets a straight, you see."

"Who vvas a straight?"

"Don't you know about poker, Mr. Wasserman?"

"They do. Lady O'Sullivan curiously remarks that her hand is worth a nickel, and she is followed and raised by the other two. By and by there was $10 on the board."

"You don't say?"

"Then $10, $15, $25."

"By golly, but how awful!"

"Do you know what 'call' means, Mr. Wasserman?"

"I do. One time a man calls me a liar, and I hit him on der nose."

"But a poker call is different. Lady O'Sullivan finally called and showed her hand, and it was when she discovered that the countess had a flush that the fun began. All grabbed for the money, and in less than a minute there was a row on hand. It took me and two policemen to separate those women, and they had scratched and bit and pulled hair till each was a sight to see. The countess had fainted away when we carried her up to her flat."

"Und don't somebody go by der police station?" asked the grocer.

"No."

"Und don't some judgments of beaten fall on nobody?"

"Not at all. We simply pulled them apart and left them to fight it out some other day. They are certain to have another try at it."

"But it vvas awful—awful."

"But what are you going to do about it?"

"I can't do nottings maybe, but it makes me grieve in my heart. Mr. Sprocket, you take two ears of green corn and three tomatoes and go home und say to dese womens dot it vvas all vanity und wickedness und dot if sooch peoples can go to heafen when dey dies den I like to stay down here mit my wife und keep a grocery mit canned salmon shust ash good ash nev for 22 cents a can."

BETRAYED AND SAVED

Martel du Bois, a young man of good family, but of somewhat limited means, was at the breaking out of the French revolution affianced to the daughter of a tradesman named Zoulouche, a man of wealth, but no principle.

Suddenly Martel was arrested and thrown into prison.

Mme. Romaine, a young widow who loved him, determined to save him. She went to the jailer and by means of a bribe—for money was potent in those days as well as in these—obtained an interview. Du Bois was surprised at her visit.

"I have come," she said frankly, "in the hope that I may save a life for which I would freely give my own."

"I do not know as I understand you, madame," replied the wondering prisoner.

"Probably not, for I am a woman, and women are sometimes enigmas even to themselves. I will not ask if you know me, for you certainly do not, but do you know my name?"

"Yes; you are Mme. Romaine, widow of Jules Romaine, daughter of Gustave d'Anvergne—young, lovely, accomplished and rich."

"We have ten minutes to converse in private. You must escape from here and fly from France! You may be tried at any hour, and, once tried, you will be condemned and executed."

"But who so base as to denounce me, madame?"

"Celeste Zoulouche."

"Impossible!" cried Du Bois, staggering under the mental blow. "Impossible! Mon Dieu! You are but trying my faith!"

"We are wasting precious time," said the other, glancing at her watch. Give ear to my plan. Here is a powder, of which you will take a small portion at a time. It will make you sick; you will look pale. Eat little or no food, and you will lose your strength. The physician will be called, and you will be removed to the hospital. Once there I trust I shall be able to effect your escape. You will obey my instructions?"

"Religiously."

"Then, if your trial should not come on meantime, you may be saved. I go to watch and pray and hope. Adieu!"

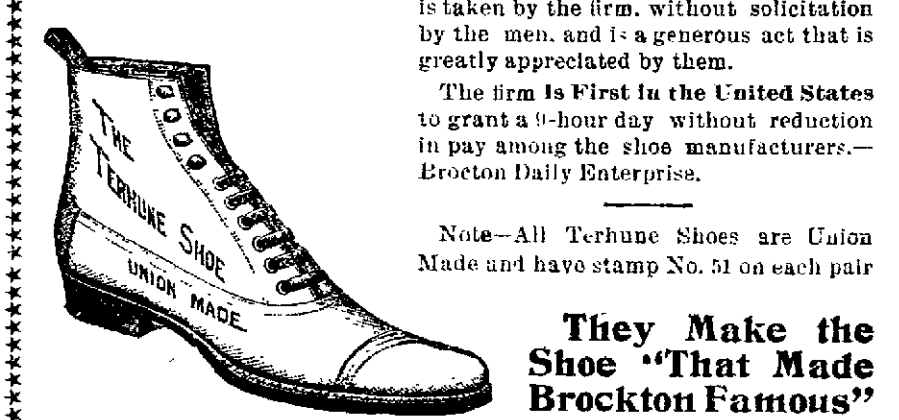

He followed the directions of Mme. Romaine, and the third day after her visit he was removed to the hospital. Here he fell under the charge of a lay sister named Agnes.

"I know all," she said to him at the first opportunity. "Julie Romaine is my cousin; I am her confidant. We have agreed upon a bold and novel plan for your escape. It is this: You must seem to get worse and worse, and at last, at the proper time, you must feign convulsions and appear to die. I will cover your face, and when the chief physician comes his rounds announce your death. If he takes my word for it, all will be well; if not, we may fail. That is our risk."

Du Bois was borne into the dissecting room. The attendants retired in haste, leaving Sister Agnes and a lad with him.

"Now, then, here are your garments, Quick!" said the fair nurse.

In less than five minutes the late corpse looked like a very active and important surgeon.

"This lad will guide you—follow him!" said Sister Agnes, hurriedly. "Linger not a moment! Adieu! Adieu!"

Five minutes later Martel du Bois, guided by the youth, was hurriedly passing through the streets of Toulouse. On the outskirts of the town the youth led him to an old stable, where they found two swift horses prepared for a journey.

"They mounted and rode southward toward Spain. When morning dawned, there were 40 good miles between them and Toulouse. The second night they entered Spain and were safe."

"Now, my brave lad," said Du Bois, "go back to your mistress, Mme. Romaine, and tell her my hand, my heart and my life are at her disposal."

"She will accept your hand and heart, but begs you to keep your life." returned the youth, with a light laugh. "She will speak for herself!" rejoined Du Bois sharply.

"She does!" laughed the other.

"How is this?"

"I am Julie Romaine."

They were married in Spain, and at the close of the reign of terror returned to France and lived long and happily.

Cause and Effect.

"He's quite a prominent politician here, is he not?" inquired the visiting Briton.

"Oh, no; he's a statesman," replied the native.

"Well, what's the difference?"

"A statesman, my dear sir, is one who is in politics because he has money. A politician is one who has money because he is in politics."—Philadelphia Press.

Making the Blind See.

Success in desperate cases by conservative treatment is the lesson often repeated and yet never quite sufficiently learned by any physician or surgeon. The infinite ingenuity behind the healing processes, the never renounced struggle toward normality, is an ever renewed source of wonder. All that is needed to elicit it is confidence in it, delay in doing anything radical, watchfulness to follow up the hints to action as they begin to show themselves.

We knew of a living and happy patient who ten years ago had albuminuria, rheumatism from long existing Bright's disease despite what all the textbooks say as to "two years" in such cases. "Don't do the irreversible thing until forced to do it" is the warning that has saved many organs and lives. Above all, never proceed with surgery ("the despair of medicine") until physiologic and medical methods have been exhausted.

The Wiener Klinischer Wochenschrift tells of the success of Herr Heller, director of an asylum for the blind, in educating the remnant of visual power retained by a "blind" child. There was only perception of light in a narrowed field left, but this by education was made to yield such indications to the eager mind that after 14 months of endeavor the boy has very useful vision, can distinguish colors and forms and even can read.

There are possibly thousands of blind people who have renounced vision instead of cultivating it to a degree that would render the blind types useless—American Medicine.

Apple Pie Order.

To feel in apple pie order is a phrase which dates back to Puritan times—to a certain Hepzibah Merton. It seems that every Saturday she was accustomed to bake two or three dozen apple pies, which were to last her family through the coming week. These she placed carefully on her pantry shelves, labeled for each day of the week, so that Tuesday's pies might not be confused with Thursday's nor those presumably large or intended for washing and sweeping days eaten when household labors were lighter. Aunt Hepzibah's "apple pie order" was known throughout the entire settlement and originated the well known saying.

APPENDICITIS.

Some Facts Regarding Its Rapid Increase.

Appendicitis among Americans is certainly increasing and while this is probably due to the excitement and worry of American business life, it is more often directly traceable to constipation. Appendicitis is caused by extraneous matter entering the vermiform appendix and not by the swallowing of seeds. If the digestive organs are kept in perfect condition so the food is duly assimilated and the bowels move gently, at least once a day, appendicitis will never develop. Don't take chances. Regular doses of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin before meals will strengthen the organs of digestion, your appetite will be good, constipation disappears and you feel better in every way. Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin does not relax the bowels by irritation, but by curing indigestion, the cause of constipation. F. D. Hall and E. F. Johnson sell it in 50c and $1.00 bottles, under a positive guarantee. Write for book of testimonials to Pepsin Syrup Co., Dept. 5, Monticello, Ill.

NEWARK BOYS

Off For the Fourth Regiment's Camp at Toledo

Fine Body of Young Men Took Morning Pan Handle Train For Columbus.

Company G, Newark's crack military organization, assembled at its armory on Fourth street at an early hour this morning and marched to the Pan Handle depot under command of Captain Carey Crawford, and embarked on Pan Handle No. 23 at 7:15 for Columbus, where they joined the other companies that make up the Fourth O. N. G. and took the Toledo and Ohio Central railroad for their annual camp at Bay View park, Toledo. The boys made a splendid appearance as they marched to the train in heavy marching order for the first time in many years.

Heavy marching order means that each man carried all the equipments except rifles, that he will need in his work stay at camp. The old habit of following the men trunks, boxes, or mess chests had by Colonel Potter's order been prohibited, and the men went equipped for service.

Company G is officered as follows:

Captain, George Cary Crawford.

First Lieutenant, Chas. E. Matthews.

Second Lieutenant, Fred E. Dille.

Newark is also proud of the fact that she has "others."

Elmer Kilzard is Major of the Fourth, commanding the second battalion.

Dr. W. H. Knans is Assistant Surgeon and ranks as Captain.

Sylvester H. Beadie is Adjutant of the Second Battalion, and Sergeant.

Lyde of the G ranks as Sergeant Major of the same battalion. In military affairs Newark is always on top. The boys anticipate a fine time.

Details from companies of the Fourth Ohio regiment left Columbus Monday afternoon over the T. & O. C. railroad for Toledo to meet the regiment which goes in camp there today.

The camp will be known as Camp Speaks. The advance detachment consisted of one sergeant and two men from each of the companies, about 20 men in all. They were in command of Captain Whitley. The detachment arrived in Toledo last night and had the cooking utensils and camp paraphernalia removed to the park.

There will be about 700 men in the Toledo camp.

The following routine of service will be observed each day during the encampment at Camp Speaks: Reveille, 5 a. m.; setting up exercises, 5:10; fatigue, 5:30; mess, 6:30; drill, first call, 6:55; assembly, 7; recall, 8:20; rifle practice, 8:45; assembly practice, 8:45; assembly, guard details, 9; adjutant's call, guard mounting, 9:10; first sergeant's call, 10:30; non-commissioned officer's school, by battalions, 10:45; mess, 11:30; officers' school, 1:30 p. m.; drill, first call, 3:25; assembly, 3:30; recall, 4:30; parade, first call, 5:15; adjutant's call, 5:30; retreat, sunset, mess, 5:30; adjutant, 10; taps, 10:30.

I

THE LADY OF LYNN

By SIR WALTER BESANT

Copyright, 1900, by Sir Walter Besant

Let us first deal with the captain. He entered the room, hung up his hat on the usual peg and put his stick in its accustomed corner. Then he took his seat and looked round.

"I am glad," he said, "that there is none present except you two. My friends, I am heavy at heart."

"So are we," said the vicar. "But go on, captain."

"You have heard, perhaps, a rumor of what has been arranged?"

"There are rumors of many kinds. The place is full of rumors. It is rumored that a certain Colonel Layton is a sharper. It is also rumored that Sam Semple is a villain. It is further rumored that the Rev. Benjamin Purden is a disgrace to the cloth, and there is yet another rumor. What is your rumor, captain?"

"Lord Fyngdale proposes to marry Molly, and I have accepted, and she has accepted, but it was to be a profound secret."

"It is so profound a secret that the company at the gardens this evening are talking about nothing else."

The captain groaned. "I have received a letter," he said. "I do not believe it, but the contents are disquieting. There is no signature. Read it."

The vicar read it: "Captain Crowle—Sir, you are a very simple old man. You are so ignorant of London and of the fashionable world that you do not even know that Lord Fyngdale, to whom you are about to give your ward, is the most notorious gambler, rake and prodigal in the whole of that quarter where the people of fashion and of quality carry on their profligate lives. In the interests of innocence and virtue make some inquiry into the truth of this statement before laying your lovely ward in the arms of the villain who has come to Lynn with no other object than to secure her fortune."

"It is an anonymous letter," said the vicar, "but there is something to be said in support of it. From what source did you derive your belief in the virtues of this young nobleman?"

"From Sam Semple."

"Who is in the service of his lordship. I know not what he does for him, but if he is turned out of that service he will infallibly be clapped into a debtor's prison."

"There is also that grave and reverend divine."

"The man Purden. He is notorious for writing ribald verses and for leading a life that is a disgrace to his profession."

"There is also the Lady Anastasia."

"I know nothing about her ladyship except that she keeps the bank, as they call it, every evening and that the gaming table allures many to their destruction."

"My friends," said the captain, "what am I to do?"

"You must make inquiry. You must tell Lord Fyngdale that things have been brought to you; that you cannot believe them if, as is possible, you do not, but that you must make inquiries before trusting your ward to his protection. You are her guardian, captain."

"I am more than her guardian. I love her better than if she was my own child."

"We know you do, captain. Therefore write a letter to him. Tell him those things. Say that you must have time to make these inquiries. I will help you with the letter. And tell him as well that you must have time to draw up settlements. If he is honest, he will consent to this investigation into his private character. If he wants Molly and not her money bag, he will at once agree to the settlement of her fortune upon herself."

"I am an old fool, I suppose," said the captain. "I have believed everything and everybody. Yet I cannot, my friends, I cannot think that this man, so proud, so brave, who risked his life for Molly, is what this letter says."

"Other letters say the same thing. Now, captain, let us write."

The letter which was dictated by the vicar was duly written, signed and sealed. Then it was sent up stairs to his lordship's private room.

CHAPTER XIII.

A RESPIRE.

WAS as one who carries a respite for a man already in the cart and on his way to Tyburn, or I was as one who himself receives a respite on the way to Tyburn, for if the charges in these letters were true there could be no doubt as to the result of an inquiry. Nor could there be any doubt that Lord Fyngdale in such a case would refuse an inquiry. I ran, therefore, as if everything depended on my speed, and I arrived breathless.

Molly was alone, walking about the garden restlessly. The sun was now set, but the glow of the sky lingered, and her face was flushed in the western light. "Jack," she cried, "I thought we had parted this afternoon! What has happened? You have been running. What is it?"

"A good deal has happened, Molly. For one thing, you will not be married tomorrow morning."

"Why not? Is my lord ill?"

"Not that I know of, but you will not be married tomorrow morning."

"You talk in riddles, Jack."

"Would you like to put off the wedding, Molly?"

"Alas, if I could put it off altogether! I am downhearted over it, Jack. It weighs me down like lead. But there is no escape."

"I think I have in my pocket a means of escape—a respite at least—unless there are worse liars in the world than those we have at Lynn."

"Liar at Lynn, Jack? Who are they? Oh, Jack, what has happened?"

"I sat down on a garden bench," Molly said, "you hold the private character of Lord Fyngdale in the highest esteem, do you not?"

"There is no better man living. This makes me ashamed of being so loath to marry him."

"Well, but, Molly, consider. Who has bestowed this fine character upon his lordship?"

"Everybody who knows him—Sam Semple for one. He is never weary of singing the praises of his patron."

"He is a grateful soul and, on his own account, a pillar of religion. I will show you presently what an ornament he is to religion. Who else?"

"The Rev. Benjamin Purden, once his tutor. Surely he ought to know."

"Surely. Nobody ought to know better. I will show you presently how admirable a witness to character this reverend divine must be esteemed."

"There is Sir Harry Maitins, who assured me that his lordship is thought to be too virtuous for the world of fashion."

"He is himself, like the parson, a fine judge of character. Is that all?"

"No. The Lady Anastasia herself spoke to me of his nobility."

"She has also spoken to me—of other things. See here, Molly," I juggled out the two letters. "What I have here contain the characters of all these excellent persons—the latest scandals about them, their reputations and their practices."

"But, Jack, what scandals? What reputations?"

"You shall see, Molly. Oh, the allegations may be false, one and all. For what I know Sam may have the wings of an archangel, and Mr. Purden may be already overripe for the new Jerusalem. But you shall read."

"I offered her the letters. 'No,' she said. 'Read them yourself.'"

"The first, then, is from my father's first cousin, Zachary Pentecost, a bookseller in Little Britain, which is a part of London. He is, I believe, a respectable, God-fearing man. You will observe that he does not vouch for the truth of his information."

"I then read at length the letter which you have already heard."

"What do you think, Molly?"

"I don't know what to think. Is the world so wicked?"

"Here is another letter, concerning the Rev. Benjamin Purden. Observe that this is another and an independent witness." So I read the second letter, which you have also heard.

"What do you think of this worthy gentleman, Molly?"

"Oh, Jack, I am overwhelmed! Tell me more, what it means!"

"It means, my dear, that a ruined gambler thought to find an heiress who would know nothing of his tarnished reputation. She must be rich. All he wanted was her money. She must not have her money tied up; it must be all in his own hands, to do with it what he chose—that is to say, to dissipate and waste it in riot and raking and gambling."

"Lord Fyngdale? Jack, think of his face, think of his manners. Are they such as you would expect in a rake?"

"There are perhaps different kinds of rakes. Tom Rising would spend the night drinking and bawling songs. Another kind would practice wickedness as eagerly, but with more politeness. What do I know of such men? Certain I am that Lord Fyngdale would not scour the streets and play the Mohawk, but that he has found other vices more pleasant and more, apparently, polite is quite possible."

"I don't understand, Jack. All the gentlemen like Mr. Rising drink and sing. Do all gentlemen who do not drink practice other vices?"

"Well, Molly, you have seen the vicar taste a glass of wine. He will roll it in the glass; he will hold it to the light, admiring the color; he will inhale the fragrance; he will drink it slowly, little by little, sipping the contents, and he will not take more than a single glass or two at the most. In the same time Tom Rising would have gulped down a whole bottle. One man wants to gratify many senses; the other seeks only to get drunk as quickly as he can. So, I take it, with the forbidden pleasures of the world, the one may cultivate his taste; the other may be satisfied with the coarse and plentiful debauchery. This is not, however, talk for honest folk like you and me."

"Go on with your story, Jack. Never mind the different ways of wickedness."

"Well, he heard of an heiress. She belonged to a town remote from fashion—a town of simple merchants and farmers. She was very rich; much richer than he at first believed."

"Who told him about this heiress?"

"A creature called Sam Semple, whom the captain once cudgeled. Why,

Molly, it was revealed. To return for the cudgeled he would place you and your fortune in the hands of a man who would bring misery upon you and ruin on your fortune. Heavens, how the thing works out! And it happened just in the nick of time that a spring was found in the town—a spring whose medicinal properties—Ha!" I jumped to my feet. "Molly, who found that spring? Sam Semple. Who wrote to the doctor about it? Sam Semple. Who spread abroad a report that the physicians of London were sending their patients to Lynn? Sam Semple. How many patients have come to us from London? None, save and except only the party of those who came secretly in his lordship's train to sing his praises and to work his wicked will. Why, Molly—I burst into a laugh. For now I understood, as one sometimes does understand, suddenly and without proof other than the rapid conclusion, the full meaning of the whole. "Molly, I say, there has never been any medicinal spring here at all. The doctor's well is but common spring water. There are no cures. The whole business is a plan, a bite, an invention of Sam Semple!"

"Jack, have a care. How can that be when the doctor has a long list of cures?"

"I know it, but I do know that Sam Semple invented the spa in order to bring this invasion of sharpers and gamblers and heiress hunters. Oh, what a liar he is! What revenge!"

spelling is not such as would satisfy my father.

"Naturally she looked to me for advice. I had written many letters to my owners and to foreign merchants about cargoes, and the like, and was therefore able to advise the composition of a letter which should be justly expressed and to the point."

"Holmes Lord—This is the name at the present moment in my guardian's parlour"—writing parlor with a parlor harbor. "It is to inform you that intelligence has been brought by letters from London and Cambridge. Touching the matters referred to in these letters, I have to report for your satisfaction that they call your lordship in round terms a gambler and a ruined rake and your companions at the spa—viz, Sam Semple, the parson, the rickety old bean and the others—sharpers, rogues, common cheats and swindlers. Shall not, therefore, meet your lordship at the church tomorrow morning as instructed. Awaiting your lordship's explanations and commands, your most obedient, humble servant."

"Molly."

This letter I folded, sealed, addressed and dropped into my pocket. Then I bade Molly good night, conducted her to be thankful for her escape and so left her with a light heart. Verily it seemed as if the sadness of the last two months had been wholly and suddenly lifted, and on my way back to the Crown I passed the Lady Anastasia's lodging just as her chair was brought to the house. I opened the door for her and stood by in hand.

"Why, it is Jack!" she cried. "It is the sailor Jack, the constant lover. Have you anything more to tell me?"

"Only that Molly will not keep that appointment of tomorrow evening."

"Oh, that interesting appointment in St. Nicholas' church. May a lady ask why the ceremony has been postponed?"

"Things have been disclosed at the last moment, fortunately in time."

"What things, and by whom?"

"By letter. It is stated as a fact well known that Lord Fyngdale is nothing better than a ruined rake and a notorious gambler."

"Indeed! The excellent Lord Fyngdale! Impossible! Quite impossible! The illustrious example of so many virtues! The explanations will be, I am sure, complete and satisfactory. Ruined; a rake; a notorious gambler! What next will the world say? Does his lordship know of this discovery? Not yet? You said it was a discovery, did you not? Well, my friend, I am much obliged to you for telling me. You are quite sure Molly will not be there? Very good of you to tell me. For my own part I start for London quite early—at 5 o'clock. Goodnight, Jack!"

Then I went into the Crown, where I learned that the captain had been reading another letter containing accusations as bad as those in the other two.

So we fell to talking over the business, and it was resolved that the captain should demand explanations by letter, that he should refuse to receive the villain Sam Semple or his lordship, and that the vicar should, if necessary, proceed to London and there learn what he could concerning the past history and the present reputation of the noble suitor. Meantime I said no more about the intended marriage at St. Nicholas' church, and the abandonment of the plan. As things turned out, it would have been far better had I told the captain and had we both planted ourselves as sentinels at the door, so as to be quite sure that Molly did not go forth at 6 in the morning.

That evening, after leaving me, Lady Anastasia sent a note to Lord Fyngdale. "I am leaving Lynn early tomorrow morning. I expect to be in London in two days. Shall write to Molly."

EIGHTY-FIFTH

Birthday Anniversary Celebrated by A. J. Johnson, Near Highwater.

Highwater, O., Aug. 19.—Mr. A. J. Johnson, better known as "Leo" of this place, and who is one of the oldest and most highly respected citizens of Licking county, celebrated the 85th anniversary of his birth last Saturday. About thirty friends and relatives were present and assisted Mr. and Mrs. Johnson in celebrating the event in a manner suitable to the occasion, and a nice time was had by all, although no one present enjoyed the day's festivities more than did Mr. Johnson. Mr. Johnson was born in McKean township, where he has resided continuously for eighty-five years. When he was born the country in which his parents resided was a wilderness. He has lived to see many changes in the part of the country in which he resides, and bids fair to live many more years. He is very strong and hearty considering his age, and was never sick more than a day or two during his long life. On Sunday, the day after celebrating his eighty-fifth birthday anniversary, he walked two miles to visit a friend.

WELSH HILLS.

The "Juniors" held their regular monthly meeting Sunday afternoon. Mr. Enoch J. Price, a prosperous and rising young attorney of Chicago, and family, is now visiting his mother, Mrs. Thomas D. Price of this community. Business matters demand his attention here also.

Last Monday evening, the local board of sub-directors of this, the 9th sub-district of Granville township, met and agreed to hire Miss Emma Horton as teacher for the next school year, subject of course to the action of the township board of education. The teacher previously selected having resigned to accept another position.

Ernest C. Williams, Royal Price, Grover C. Pittsford, Gertrude Williams, Josephine Williams, and Bertha Fleming formed a merry crowd to go to Buckeye Lake on Friday.

Superintendent Charles Hoover, Sunday appointed a committee to make arrangements for holding annual Welsh Hills Sunday School picnic which has been an event in the Welsh Hills every summer for many years, and now carries most pleasant memories in the minds of many of those who are now grey-headed, but, nevertheless, still enjoy the annual picnic a reminder of youthful days.

Mrs. Joyce Hottum of Newark Sunday visited her two children, Gladys and Kester, who make their home now with Mr. and Mrs. Hiram J. Williams, and she also pleasantly spent the day with friends.

Mrs. Emma Horton, who was recently elected as our teacher for the coming school year in this district, spent Sunday at this place making acquaintances and friends.

Last week's bill at Idlewild casino was paid, but this week's program "was a blank." As a rule there are no shows in every village performance, but at the Park Casino this week is strong from start to finish. It is by all odds the best that has been seen at the park.

CHOIR FROM COLUMBUS.

Granville, Aug. 20.—There will be services in St. Luke's Protestant Episcopal church next Sunday afternoon, Aug. 25, at 3 o'clock. Music will be furnished by a choir from Columbus.

AMUSEMENTS.

Criminals are the sharpest and shrewdest people on earth, and are constantly lending their wits towards the invention of new tools to use in their nefarious occupation. Especially is this true of those men who make a specialty of cracking safes, opening bank vaults and other places supposed to be thoroughly burglar proof. As soon as the master mind of the mechanic invents a burglar proof lock or door, just as quickly does the active burglar invent some tool which will open it. The tools burglars use are near perfection, of the finest tempered steel, skilfully joined together, and of such power that no metal can resist them. No doubt the finest set of safe-crackers' tools ever made are those used in the great bank cracking scene in the novel detective play, "Caught in the Web," to be presented at the Auditorium next Monday night, Aug. 26th. They were picked up in Northfield, Vt., after a successful looting of the bank in that town had taken place. They are used in this scene with telling effect, and give an idea of how burglars work. The unexpected and startling realism of this act is heightened by the denouement which will hold the spectator speechless with astonishment. This scene is only one of five, and all are just as natural and effective as this one. The play is a rare combination of humor and pathos and has won success not only on this continent, but also because it is a truthful picture of the modern detective, a class of men who do great work in every community, but all of whom so little is known. The engagement of "Caught in the Web" is for next Monday night at the Auditorium.

Remember that Vogel's big musical show will be at the Auditorium on Thursday evening, August 29th. The organization is so well and so favorably known in Newark that a big house is assured.

AN UNEQUALLED RECORD

There is a rapidly increasing volume of Newark evidence rolling up for the great medicine Dr. A. W. Chase's Nerve Pills.

It would seem that hardly anyone can take Dr. A. W. Chase's Nerve Pills without receiving marked benefit. The wonderful action of this medicine in putting people on their feet who are in a weak run down condition is the talk of every place they are known. It is only a short time since they first came to Newark, yet today they are more in evidence for merit with Newark people than all other medicines combined.

Mr. J. O. Harter of No. 182 German street, Newark, Ohio, says: "I was generally run down, felt nervous, slept poorly, back was weak and felt generally below the right mark. I was told to try Dr. A. W. Chase's Nerve Pills and got some at C. T. Bricker's City Drug store, and they certainly suited me. I regained health, strength and energy, slept well and back all right. I am glad to recommend the Nerve Pills."
